

c't Home & Office

At work or at home - working on and with a PC is not just about emails, video conferencing and web browsing. Classic office work makes up the majority - writing, calculating, documents. The magazine is aimed primarily at private users, freelancers and smaller companies and contains purchasing advice, tests and practical instructions on typical office programmes, including those outside of Microsoft Office. One focus is on hardware and software for document management for private individuals and SMEs who want to at least come close to the much-vaunted paperless office. And because you can't do without paper altogether, we offer advice on buying a printer.
