EDITORIAL PROFILE

c't magazin is Europe's largest IT and tech magazine and one of the most reliable and respected sources of information for anyone interested in technology - from demanding users and data centre professionals to IT managers and investment decision-makers. 261,144 buyers per issue, including 154,527 subscribers, value this unique magazine, which stands for thematic diversity, technical expertise, journalistic independence and thorough research.

With independent and cross-platform product tests, useful practical reports, background information and basic articles, c't magazine provides every bit of expertise and the basis for well-founded purchasing decisions in the private and professional environment. The topics range beyond IT issues to e-mobility, energy supply, sustainability and digital health.

c't magazine is published biweekly in all relevant print and digital channels, ensuring that both readers and advertisers are kept up to date and can react quickly in a dynamic market, but with the necessary thoroughness. Podcasts, social media appearances and YouTube channels expand the c't brand with digital offerings.

— OUR READERSHIP

We have selected relevant decision-maker titles and compared them .

The result: Among all IT titles - including the top business titles - c't magazin was the winner in terms of reach.

One issue reaches
860,000 c't readers
- says the AWA 2024.

With the highest share of decision-makers for computers/accessories, 95% of c't readers decide on investments in this area both professionally and privately.

Almost one in five is a TOP professional in the computer, EDP, IT occupational field - far ahead of all other occupations IT and business stocks.

Team players: The trend among the younger generation to work in flat hierarchies is also reflected in the decision-making process. More team decisions are in demand - the visible proportion of co-decision-making is high in all titles. c't magazine readers lead the way with 241,000 readers.

The screenshot shows the heise online homepage with a navigation bar at the top. Below it, there's an advertisement for 'efm gärtnermakar.de' featuring a man working on a laptop. The text in the ad reads: "Flexible ERP-Software für jede Aufgabe". Below the ad, there's a small note in German: "Dass die Apple-Tochter Claris mit FileMaker eine nützliche Business-Software anbietet, die Unternehmen hilft, sich zu entwickeln, ist allgemein bekannt. Wie flexibel aber die auf dieser Plattform basierende ERP-Software eFM-Business ist und welche vielseitigen Fähigkeiten sie besitzt, weißt womöglich (noch) nicht jeder. Werfen wir also einen Blick auf die neueste Version 6.5 und wie sie dir und deinem Unternehmen weiterhelfen kann." At the bottom, there's another note: "Wer heute noch den eigenen Bereich auf dem Betrieb organisiert möchte, kommt um eine verlässliche ERP-Software nicht herum. Auf dem Markt finden sich zahlreiche günstige Varianten, doch schaut man etwas genauer hin, entspannt sich die meiste als untauglich und wenig flexibel. Lässt du dir hingegen eigene komplette individuelle ERP-Software anfertigen, maßgeschneidert sozusagen, geht dies sehr schnell ins Geld. Vor allen Fällen kosten für kürzige Anpassungen tun hier richtig weh."

Tach Simon,

zuerst die schlechte Nachricht: wegen des Feiertages gibt es diese Woche nur ein Hochkant-Short-Video, das freitäßige "große" 3003-Video fällt aus. Doch jetzt die gute Nachricht: Ihr habt mehr Zeit, euch meinen Kommentar zum aktuellen Hype zu Gemüte zu führen! Ist das nicht was?

Notion hat nämlich ein ziemlich umfangreiches Update für seine Software angekündigt. Was da unter anderem auf euch zukommt und was mich an Notion trotzdem stört, erfahrt ihr, wenn ihr ein ganz bisschen weiter herunterscrollt.

Habt eine schöne Restwoche,
